BABE RUTH ALL-STAR ACTION—Corey Koch of the Northern Oxford All-Stars slams a two-out, two-run blast over the right center field fence, in Babe Ruth League all-star play-off action Saturday in Woodstock. Corey's homer, his second of the day, followed a one-run shot by Greenwood teammate Tim Hebert, and put the local all-stars in front 7-6. Right, Corey is congratulated by his teammates. But the locals' lead was short-lived, as their opponents from the Andy Valley West answered with two runs of their own in the bottom of the inning and went on to sweep the best-of-three series.

Monitoring proposed for Lake Christopher watershed

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District has applied for a $5,000 grant to inventory and monitor the watershed of Lake Christopher (Bryant Pond).

According to OCSWCD District Manager Jim Chandler, if the grant is approved, the watershed program would represent a major expansion of the monitoring efforts of the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood.

Chandler, who is also a charter member of the local lakes association, announced the grant application at the association's annual meeting Saturday.

In 1988 the lakes association began paying a water-quality consultant to annually monitor the dissolved oxygen in local lakes. This year six lakes will be monitored, at a cost of approximately $625. (Much of the funding for the monitoring comes from the towns of Woodstock and Greenwood.)

In addition to the professional testing, volunteer monitors from the association have for nearly ten years been regularly measuring and recording the clarity of the lakes.

Dissolved oxygen and clarity are key indicators of the health of a lake. A progressive decline in either or both indicators is considered a sure sign that the lake is in trouble.

The most recent testing indicates that local lakes are about on a par with most in Maine, but that many are showing signs of increased stress. Lake Christopher, for example, already has dead spots (areas with no dissolve oxygen) in some of its deepest holes.

But with only a limited history of testing data to draw on, Chandler

Bethel planners set hearing on Sun. Riv. Rd. restaurants

By LIZ CHAPMAN

The Bethel Planning Board will hold a public hearing July 21 to consider site plan applications for two proposed restaurants on the Sunday River Road.

The board voted last week to find the applications complete, but noted a number of requirements which still need to be satisfied before final board action following the hearings, according to planning assistant Stacy Benjamin.

In both cases, the board said it needs more time to review the application and may have further questions after the public hearing, Benjamin said. The board will probably vote on the plans during its next regular meeting July 22, she said.

Planning Board members voted unanimously to find both applications complete, despite the deficiencies, in order to schedule public hearings and "expedite the process," she said.

The board will vote on the plans during its next meeting "unless substantial new issues come up at the public hearing," Benjamin said.

The board reviewed a plan by developer Heinie Merrill of the Merrill

Co. of Portland for a 184 seat restaurant and tavern to be built at the intersection of Route 2 and the Sunday River Road.

Benjamin said the planning board asked for the following items: entrance permits from the Department of Transportation; a flood plain permit; a sketch of the business sign; and a change to the site plan to relocate a drainage culvert, at the request of an abutting landowner, according to Benjamin.

The Merrill project will include a

Woodstock asked to set money aside

Woodstock's share of the SAD #44 budget is $41,000 below selectmen's projections, and voters will be asked at a special town meeting July 21 to reserve some of the money for next year's budget.

Selectmen last week finalized a seven-article Town Meeting warrant which, if approved, would reduce the amount to be raised by property taxation. The warrant includes four new spending items totaling $33,500, for a net gain of $7,500.

Keenan plans to open Sat.

The Keenan Auction Company plans to open its Bethel clothing store on Mollycokett Day.

Steve Keenan said remodeling of the company's building at the top of Main Street (former home of Skidder's Deli, Wood 'N Glass Gallery and True North Adventureware) has been finished and goods will be moved into the new store beginning today (Wednesday).

The clothing store did not go through site plan review, because the Bethel planning board ruled there was no change of use.

Planning board assistant Stacy Benjamin said if further renovations to the building change its current use, then the Kingfield company will have to go through the site plan review process.

Keenan said initial plans call for the store to be staffed by Keenan Auction Company employees from Kingfield, but local clerks will be hired eventually.

The store will offer seasonal family apparel, including ski-wear, outdoor-wear, a children's line and more.

New addresses are on the way

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel residents may find some strange numbers when they open their property tax bills in September. Not the amount due (which should stay relatively steady) but their proposed new street-number address.

Bethel, like the other SAD #44 towns and the rest of Maine, will be converting sooner or later to a "name-and-number" address system.

And Bethel Selectman Henry Dombkowski hopes that by September Bethel he will be able to give town taxpayers a taste of what the new system will be like.

The name-and-number system will give village residents a permanent and unique address designation, and it may be a first step toward door-to-door mail delivery.

For rural residents the new system will replace the current route-and-box-number identifications, and it will eliminate the need for them to change their subscriptions and stationery every time the postal service decides to change its mail delivery routes.

But more important, according to the state officials who are pushing the conversion, the new system, when combined with an enhanced statewide 911 system, will make it easier for emergency-service personnel to locate a residence.

"The name-and-number system is really the key," said Lt. Col Alfred Skolfield, a member of the state's E-911 committee. "It will put us in a

Latest unemployment figures don't compute

By LIZ CHAPMAN

"I can't explain these numbers so I'm not going to try," a state labor analyst said last week about the May unemployment rate for the Norway-Paris area.

Gerard Dennison, research manager for the Department of Labor in Lewiston, said the Norway-Paris jobless rate registered at 7.5 percent in May, down dramatically from 11.1 percent in April and 12.3 percent a year ago.

The latest figures show the area gained 650 jobs in May, but Dennison doesn't believe it.

"There's no way I can justify a 650 job increase. There's no way the unemployment rate is that low," he said.

Dennison estimated that the Norway-Paris area's jobless rate for May is two to three percentage points lower than the May 1991 rate.

Statewide, the figures show that 14,000 fewer Mainers were unemployed in May, a statistic Dennison called "ridiculous."

State labor officials, in announcing the statistics last week, said the unemployment rate is based in part on information gathered by the Census Bureau.

The following day, Census officials in Washington, D.C., and Boston conceded the May figures could be "an aberration," but they weren't ready to admit errors had been made.

Dennison said the Norway-Paris

GUILTY BY ASSOCIATION Compilation

New Outlook CD showcases range of Maine rockers

By E.L. GURNEY

For those of you bemoaning the total lack of "cultchuh" up here in the Third World plantation of western Maine, take heart.

Nuggets can be found with a little exploration, a dose of tolerance, and a willingness to listen (perhaps the hardest thing to find up here).

"Guilty By Association" is a broad tapestry of musical threads, thin strands by themselves, all so individual. A collection of bands, musicians and whackos of the Maine music scene all "guilty of creating original music," GBA is a disc of creative impulse.

From reggae to pure pop, from rap to college to rockabilly, each group performs its vision. Together they form a strong statement that Maine is a cultural wasteland—NOT!

In actuality, Maine appears to be in good shape, musically. Free of the pressures of major markets ("The new stuff is such-and-such, you've got to do it"), bands are free to explore a variety of styles. Certainly in terms of performance venues, there are limitations ("Sorry, we only book country and western here").

But that doesn't seem to have restricted anyone's musical vision on this disc.

What is captured here, in uncut, raw and rare flash is a sample of what is brilliant in Maine music. No, not particularly polished; yeah, as experimental as democracy. The first cut, aptly titled "Vision," by a group called The Peace Seeking Fools, spins the disc forward with a kind of "what's this all about" feeling. A combination of swirl guitar and muted lyrics starts the disc with

Opinions

From Washington—

From Sen. George Mitchell Youngsters need summer jobs
 From Sen. William Cohen Fighting adult illiteracy

Many students in Maine and around the country traditionally spend summer months earning money for their education and to contribute to family finances. In this recession, however, many young people are facing difficulty obtaining jobs.

I am pleased that Congress recently approved legislation I advocated that will provide a boost for summer youth employment and training programs. This bill is a small but important step that will help bring jobs to hundreds of youths in Maine.

The legislation includes funds for summer youth and training programs created under the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 that were designed to give important work experience to young people and help them develop job skills. These programs, which operate in Maine and around the country, bring structure to the lives of youths between the ages of 14 and 19. Under the programs, young people are introduced to an organized schedule of work hours, are required to be on time and be accountable for their own actions.

The programs have both short and long-term benefits. They not only provide summer jobs but they train young people for the future. They enhance basic educational skills and encourage school completion.

The funds for summer youth employment and training programs were included in legislation that contains provisions to assist and help rebuild urban areas such as Los Angeles.

The Senate also recently moved forward separate legislation to help those who face difficulty finding jobs in the recession. This bill would extend unemployment benefits and improve the unemployment compensation system. Extending jobless benefits is a necessary short term step to bring relief to American families, and provide them with purchasing power to help support our economy.

Under current law, once individuals exhaust their 26 weeks of state unemployment benefits, the Emergency Unemployment Compensation program offers 20 weeks of additional benefits to the jobless in high unemployment states such as Maine. Jobless persons in all other states receive 13 weeks of additional benefits.

However, the current program expires on July 4, so that anyone exhausting state benefits after that time would receive no additional compensation.

The bill approved by the Senate continues federal extended benefits until March, 1993. Should the national unemployment rate decline to below 7 percent, the program would be adjusted and provide fewer weeks of additional compensation. The current rate of unemployment is 7.5 percent nationwide. It is approximately 8 percent in Maine.

The new legislation also includes permanent reforms of the unemployment compensation system. A number of changes are made with regard to eligibility requirements so that more of the jobless who exhaust state benefits will qualify for federal extended benefits. States would also have the option of using alternative criteria to qualify for extended benefits in future recessions.

The future of this nation depends on a skilled, well educated and disciplined work force. We must continue to work to support programs that help transform today's young people into tomorrow's competitive work force and that assist families during this difficult economic period.

I will continue to work on legislation as part of a comprehensive effort to promote economic stability in Maine and around the nation.

When Vincent Crommett learned to read, he opened the door to new opportunities for himself and his family.

The 27-year-old from Weeks Mills, who works as a foreman for an emergency tree service, says that although he had finished the 11th grade, he could read only at a first-to-second-grade level. At work, he procrastinated when his boss repeatedly asked him to take the state license tests needed to advance him his job.

"I didn't want anyone to know I had reading problems, but I had to get my licenses," says Crommett, who sought help from the Literacy Volunteers of America.

The non-profit educational group sent Crommett to a local tutor, who has worked with him nearly two years for about six hours a week, to bring his reading up to a 10th-grade level.

He has now passed two license tests and is preparing for yet another.

Recently, Crommett's accomplishments were recognized here in Washington at the National Adult Literacy Graduation Day, a special Capitol Hill ceremony honoring exceptionally motivated new readers representing each of the 50 states.

Admitting a reading problem and then correcting it can carry an adult down an emotionally frustrating path. Many of us take reading for granted, but for some people deciphering a prescription label, job application or emergency instructions can be an impossible task.

In Maine, about one in five adults is functionally illiterate. That is, they are unable to use reading, speaking, writing and computational skills in everyday situations. Approximately 30 percent of Mainers over age 18 have not finished high school. In addition, there are at least 8,000 people living in Maine for whom English is a second language, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Nationwide, the adult illiteracy rate is increasing. The census shows 17-21 million adults do not read at all or read below a fourth grade level.

Although there is no single reason for illiteracy, some undereducated adults may have quit school or changed schools often, suffered a learning, physical or emotional disability, or had ineffective teachers.

But as technology advances rapidly, literacy is increasingly important to the survival of every adult American. If left unchecked, illiteracy will pose a serious threat to the economic health of the nation in the next century.

Although Maine is dealing with this problem through federally-supplemented state and local literacy programs, an increasing number of Maine volunteers are getting involved as well. For example, the Maine Literacy Volunteers of America (LVA) have helped start tutorial services for adults in basic reading and English as a second language.

Over the years, I have strongly supported legislation, such as the National Literacy Act, which became law last year, that aims to expand and improve America's literacy programs.

Laura Coombs, the Maine LVA director, says learning to read "helps you become an informed consumer, helps your self-esteem and job security and allows you to exercise your right to vote."

"I tell my daughter, who's 6, that she's not going to be like her father was," Crommett says. "I read to her all the time now."

For more information about adult literacy programs in Maine, call the Adult Learning Opportunities Hotline at 1-800-322-5455.

THE MEASURED MILES—Bethel Selectman Henry Dombkowski measures Broad Street in preparation for drafting a name-and-number address system for the town. Letters to the Editor:

COWARDS AND THIEVES

To the Editor:

This is the first letter I have ever written to a newspaper to be read by many persons, no doubt, and hopefully to the person or persons who stole my brother's sawmill in Rumford (on the South Rumford Road - so called).

I am so angry over the situation. To know that a coward and thief could dismantle a 15-foot carriage with a Glover feeder; a blower; a 75 h.p. motor and all other parts of a sawmill and truck it off to another location, unknown to the owner. Most certain the thieves, (as one person could not do this alone) must have known that the owner, Ray H. Thurston, has not been well, and never once remembered the Eighth Commandment, "Thou shall not steal."

Hopefully those persons who stole his mill will make much money in the success as a saw mill operator—but will those labors be in vain! I could continue on how I feel about this, and how the family knows that my brother never stole from a person and has been kind to his friends and neighbors. It is wishful thinking that perhaps, the persons who stole the machinery will return it.

Summer school students at Gould Academy have started a newspaper recycling program. The bin is located in the Bethel Post Office. We hope that everyone used the bin for recycling newspaper materials such as weekly tabloids, grocery flyers, and newspapers (no junk mail, please).

The program will last through Aug. 8. We wish to thank the Bethel Post Office for helping us with this important summer project.

ANY-DEER APPLICATIONS

The application period is now open for hunters who want a permit to take a deer of either sex this fall.

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife says that hunters who applied for an any-deer permit last year should automatically receive an application in the mail by mid-June. Anyone who hasn't received one by then, or anyone who didn't apply last year, may obtain a free application form in the usual places: town offices, license agents, deer tagging stations and offices of the Fish and Wildlife Department.

An any-deer permit allows the holder the option of taking a deer of either sex in a selected deer management district.

The deadline is Aug. 15, a Saturday. The department's Augusta office will be open that day until 5 p.m., but only to receive applications. The department will issue about 49,000 permits this year, an increase of 7,500. Permits are allocated among 18 deer management districts based on local deer population conditions.

The department's goal is to gradually increase the statewide deer population to 300,000, or about 20 percent.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Mason family members from Florida, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine attended the 4th Annual Family Gathering at the Dr. Moses Mason House on June 27. Registration was held throughout the morning and those attending had an opportunity to check their family connections by examining various family charts brought by those attending. Also available was a large amount of genealogical data collected by the Bethel Historical Society through the years.

During the business portion of the meeting Helen Mason of Springfield was awarded the prize for being the oldest in attendance (86), William McGrath the youngest (8) and Virginia Hood, Largo, FL, the one who came the furthest.

Society Director Stanley R. Howe provided some anecdotes regarding the life and career of Dr. Moses Mason in the afternoon.

A special feature of the day was the presentation of a birthday cake to Elizabeth Mason Carter on her 85th birthday. She was born June 27, 1907 and received the greetings of all in attendance.

Planning for Sudbury Canada Days (August 7, 8, 9) continues to go on. A good number of craft demonstrators/exhibitors have been invited. There will also be the usual events: art show, children's games and parade, flower show, historical videos, farming-logging exhibits, badminton, horseshow and croquet tournaments, the lot-driver's bean supper and the old-time variety show. New additions this year will be the introduction of the Hall Lecture on Friday evening and old fashioned hymn singing on Sunday evening. Anyone wishing further information on Sudbury Canada Days or who wishes to volunteer should call the society office at 824-2908.

OZONE 800 NUMBER

Maine typically experiences higher concentrations of ground-level ozone ("smog") on warm, sunny summer days, and for many years state Department of Environmental Protection has issued advisories when conditions are considered "unhealthy." This summer, a toll-free telephone line has been installed to give the public current air quality information 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

The number is 1-800-223-1196.

A recorded message indicates whether air quality is "good," "moderate," "unhealthy" or "very unhealthy." Children, the elderly and people with respiratory ailments are particularly susceptible to the health problems associated with ground-level ozone.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

Street numbering for postal service and emergency (911) coordination has been on the selectmen's back burner for many years. Norm Putnam and Henry Dombkowski have assumed the work load involved in getting this special project off and running. The following is a message from Henry explaining the project.

The selectmen of Bethel have started the project of numbering the residences and businesses of the town. We are using as a guide the American Society of Planning Officials Report Number 332, Planning Advisory Service entitled "Street-Naming and Property-Numbering Systems" by Margaret A. Corwin.

This document was recommended and supplied by the U.S. Postal Service (USPS). Credit should be given to Mr. Paul Cheney of the USPS, Portland, Maine station for his advice on this project. The Postal Service will also provide a one time free mailing of a letter from the town to the property owners to notify people of their new address after the numbers have been approved and adopted.

The intersection of Main Street, Church Street, Broad Street and Mill Hill Road is used as the reference point to start the numbering system. Radiating from there, a system of giving a number to every 50 feet of reality is used throughout the town except the Main Street. The use of 50-foot sections on Main Street proved to be too large to give multiple businesses in the same building their own numbers, so a 25-foot section is used there.

The proposed numbering of Main Street and the first 7,000 feet (approximately) of Vernon Street is available at the town office. These numbers will not become official until all of Bethel's streets and roads are named and numbered. The reason for making these numbers available now is to inform citizens about the system and give a sample of the system as applied. The selectmen would like to have any constructive criticism sent to the town office.

OZONE 800 NUMBER

Maine typically experiences higher concentrations of ground-level ozone ("smog") on warm, sunny summer days, and for many years state Department of Environmental Protection has issued advisories when conditions are considered "unhealthy." This summer, a toll-free telephone line has been installed to give the public current air quality information 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

The number is 1-800-223-1196.

A recorded message indicates whether air quality is "good", "moderate", "unhealthy" or "very unhealthy." Children, the elderly and people with respiratory ailments are particularly susceptible to the health problems associated with ground-level ozone.

From the Bethel Police log:

More dog food donations and noisy pigs complaints

Police were called back to the Ron Duguay residence on Route 232 on July 5. Duguay told the Oxford County Sheriff's Office dispatcher that his neighbor's pigs were too loud. All was quiet, however, when Bethel police arrived.

On July 7, Joan Ward told police that someone had once again entered her Middle Intervale Road home and put dog food in her oven. Police told Ward to make sure to lock her doors and windows when she was not at home.

On Sunday, Officer Darren Tripp responded to a report of an emergency plane landing. Don Parker of Mechanic Street told police an "ultra-light" plane had landed in a field near Route 2 after its engine failed. Parker said the plane's occupants were trying to tow the plane to the road. When Tripp arrived at the Harrington field in Mayville, the plane was still there, but its occupants were gone.

Lost and found dogs were also reported to police last week.

On July 6, Albert Raymond of Bethel reported finding a male cocker spaniel. The next day, Cindy Haines of Bethel reported losing a long-haired black dog near upper Main Street.

In other police news, Officer Bruce Korhonen arrested George Hooper of Bryant Pond on July 6 for OUI after Hooper failed a field sobriety test.

On July 7, police responded to a one-vehicle accident near the Evans Notch Ranger Station. Ernest Perkins of Bethel reported that his gas pedal had stuck and he left the road to avoid hitting another vehicle. The police report said no one was injured and no damage was done to Perkins' vehicle.

Officer James Merrill responded Friday evening to another minor vehicle accident, this time on Main Street. Joseph Simon of Topsham told police that as he turned his vehicle with trailer in tow onto Elm Street, the trailer hit the rear bumper of a car parked on Main Street. Merrill estimated that less than $500 damage had been done to the vehicle of Chris Kelmer of Hanover.

Saturday evening, Sudbury bartender David Nivus reported that a juvenile girl had tried to use her older sister's identification in the lounge. Officer Merrill issued the girl a summons for possession of a false ID.

Sunday night, a Gould Academy security guard reported seeing three males dressed in dark clothing peeking into campus windows. Police found no one in the area, but added extra patrol that evening.

Lake monitoring said, it is impossible to tell whether the latest test results point to progressive deterioration of the lakes, or whether they are within the range of normal variation.

Overall, he said "The water quality is not bad yet, but it shows definite signs of stress and potential concern."

The watershed grant proposal was submitted to the Department of Environmental Protection's Water Quality Bureau. If approved, Chandler said, it would allow the lakes association and OCSWCD "to go the next step, and begin to address the issues," affecting water quality in the lake.

The $5,000 grant would be used to inventory the 3.9 square mile watershed of Lake Christopher and to identify potential sources of phosphorus pollution, especially non-point-source pollution from development, fertilizer, and malfunctioning septic systems, runoff and erosion.

Once that is done, Chandler said, the next step in managing the watershed of the lake would be to develop programs and incentives to control phosphorus pollution.

The Lake Christopher watershed was selected for study, Chandler said, because it is shared between the towns of Woodstock and Greenwood and encompasses a variety of land uses.

Once completed, he said, the study would provide a good model for a study of the remaining local lakes.

Chandler said he expects to know by September if the grant is successful. If so, volunteer training would be completed by the following spring and the monitoring could begin.

Avoiding a China Lake syndrome
Saturday's lakes association annual meeting was held once again at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond.

Prior to Chandler's announcement of the grant application, DEP biologist Jeff Dennis reviewed the mechanisms by which phosphorus enters and affects a lake—leading to algae blooms and depletion of the oxygen needed by other forms of aquatic life, especially cold water fish such as trout and salmon.

Using the example of China Lake, which "crashed" due to phosphorus pollution in the early 1980s, he told the 30 or so lakes association members present that the oxygen loss in North Pond, Twitchell Pond and Lake Christopher "is substantial," and these lakes are "at a fair amount of risk" for developing a serious phosphorus problem.

He described Lake Christopher as "about where China Lake was in the 70s."

And, noting that the restoration program for China Lake will cost well over a million dollars, he said: "It would have been much cheaper to have done things right originally."

Dennis concluded by outlining a watershed management program for the local lakes, one which included a watershed evaluation similar to that proposed in Chandler's grant proposal.

As a final note, he urged the members present "to clean up your own act before pointing fingers—even if your problems contribute only a relatively small amount of the pollution."

"You have the most to gain," he told the members, most of whom own shoreline property, "and everybody else knows it."

In election of officers Saturday, Nancy Willard was elected president, Jon DeNormandie vice president, Lois Ruff secretary and John Geraghty treasurer.

Willard said later that members who did not attend Saturday's meeting could send their annual dues ($10) to: Community Lakes Association, Box 15, Bryant Pond, 04219.

State Police warn about con artists and traveling criminals

Maine State Police are again warning Maine residents to be prepared for the expected influx of con artists and traveling criminals into the state. The organized groups use deceit and distraction to steal cash and valuables from homes and businesses.

Colonel Andrew E. Demers, chief of the State Police, said, "Residents must be prepared to overcome these distractions in order to prevent these thefts from occurring. Every year, thousands of dollars of cash and other items are stolen by these criminals."

Law enforcement officers from across New England met in early May, in New Hampshire, to share information about these crimes. Among the participants at the meeting were 67 Maine police officers, including members of the State Police.

Demers said homeowners should stay alert for strangers in their neighborhoods and should never allow them inside their homes. The con artists, who usually travel in pairs, distract a homeowner and once inside will quickly steal cash and other valuables.

In the business setting, the con artists will create a disturbance in the store that will require the presence of store office personnel. Once the office is vacant, other members of the group will steal cash from desk drawers, money bags and safes.

Another activity engaged by traveling criminals is to offer hot topping, driveway sealing, roofing services or home repairs and then charge the homeowner outrageous prices.

Demers said methods used in the past to gain entry into houses include: asking for directions, a drink of water, looking for a lost pet, asking to use the phone or inquiring about selling the property. Once inside, the homeowner is distracted and an accomplice will enter the home to quickly seize cash and small valuables.

Demers said residents and businesses should call police immediately whenever there is a question about suspected con artist activity. Another helpful item for police is descriptions of the persons, vehicles and license numbers.

THE PHOSPHORUS TRAIL STARTS FAR FROM THE LAKE—Even seemingly innocent ditches, like this one along Route 26 east of Bryant Pond village, can contribute to the phosphorus problem in local lakes. Unprotected ditches, lacking vegetative or rock lining, allow phosphorus-laden silt from eroding soil to find its way into water moving toward the lake. The Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District has applied for a grant to inventory such problems in the Lake Christopher watershed. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Restaurants

70-seat restaurant, a 30-seat lounge and an 84-seat tavern on the second floor. A glassed-in brewery also will be featured so patrons can watch the brewing process, Benjamin said.

Merrill is developing the property for owner Grant Wilson of Carlisle, Mass., she said.

The second application was presented by David Barnes of Wakefield, R.I., who wants to build a 76-seat restaurant and tavern called "The Last Run."

Benjamin said the planning board asked for an entrance permit from the DOT; changes to the site plan to show vegetation will be planted along an abutting property line; drainage changes; and a sketch of the business sign.

Also, the developer was asked to meet with the town's code enforcement officer to determine whether the project needs a flood plain permit.

Barnes also was asked to meet with the town manager and selectmen to discuss possible solid waste disposal problems from using disposal plates and cups at the restaurant.

The two projects would be located about one mile apart on the Sunday River Road, a two-lane artery used by more than 500,000 skiers last winter.

GEM SHOPPING—A dozen gem and mineral dealers from throughout the U.S. pitched their wares to customers this weekend at the 31st annual Western Maine Gem, Mineral and Jewelry Festival at Telstar High School. Cousins Lisa Gamble of Long Island, N.Y., above left, and Sarah Gamble of Bethel spent some time Saturday picking through a bargain box of rings, earrings and necklaces. Almost 1,000 people attended the gem show. The Oxford County Gem and Mineral Association sponsors the annual event. OCGMA officials said this year's festival turnout was the largest in several years. This was the first time the festival was held at Telstar. In recent years it has been held at the Oxford County Fairgrounds. Show organizers said they liked the new site and will probably hold the gem show at the school again next year.

Maine Conservation School seeks auction donations

"White water canoeing lessons, an antique chair, breakfast for two served by the lake, old tools, a new board game for kids. That's just a sample of the possible items and services going up for bid at our auction," said Steve Wight, president of the Maine Conservation School. The auction is being organized in cooperation with the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood. According to Nancy Willard, association president and one of the auction organizers, "there's growing enthusiasm among our members for this event. It's going to be a good time."

The auction will be held on Saturday, Aug. 8 rain or shine at the Conservation School on the shore of Lake Christopher. Proceeds will go to support the environmental education programs for children at the school.

"What we need most right now is contributions of items and services," said Wight. "This is going to be a fun event and I encourage people in the communities around the school to see what they'd like to contribute in support of the school's work with children."

To contribute to the auction, contact Wight at 665-2095 or 824-2410. Items should be delivered in advance to the school and the staff has already started storing a variety of goods and materials.

Auctioneers will be Al Barth of Bethel and David Murphy, of Bethel. "The auction will be begin promptly at 10:00 a.m. on the 8th and we're going to keep things rolling!" said Barth. "Light Lunches will be available at a reasonable price," said Buzz Gamble, the School's Executive Director. Updated lists of items will be periodically published in The Citizen.

Notes from Telstar Guidance

The Telstar High School Guidance Department ended a great 1991-92 school year with 67 percent of its graduates pursuing post secondary education at two and four year colleges and universities. An additional 12 percent enlisted in the military and 7 percent plan to pursue college in the 93-94 school year. The Telstar Guidance staff wishes every graduate the best of success. The Class of 1992 was a wonderful class to work with and it represented its school and community well.

Receiving more college acceptance news after commencement were graduates: Marko Radosavijevic, Crystal Chase and Hannah Kimball. Marko is an exchange student from Yugoslavia living with host parents, Robert and Margaret Hand of Bryant Pond. He received a full tuition scholarship to attend Hebron Academy during the 92-93 school year. He has future plans of studying engineering at an American university.

Crystal Chase, daughter of John and Leatrice Chase of Locke Mills was accepted as a pre-tech nursing major at New Hampshire Technical College, Manchester.

Her classmate, Hannah Kimball, will attend U.M.F.'s Rumford-Mexico Center taking courses leading to a degree in environmental science. Hannah lives in Bethel with her parents Glendon and Agatha Kimball.

The Guidance Office will be closed for vacation from July 17 through Aug. 14. It will reopen on Monday, Aug. 17. Office hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Students or parents needing to meet with counselors are advised to call ahead for appointments.

In reflecting back on the 91-92 school year, many Telstar H.S. Guidance programs and services were successful because of the cooperative efforts of many community members.

Counselors Dan Hart and Beth LaVallee wish to extend their sincere appreciation to everyone who donated their valuable time and assistance to the many unique programs offered at Telstar High School. Together, students were provided with many positive learning experiences that will influence their future. Thank you for your interest and support in helping teens learn and grow. May you all enjoy a wonderful summer.

CONNECT graduation

Thursday, June 11 was a day for recognition and celebration as Community Concepts' CONNECT program graduated eight teens upon their successful completion of a 20-week peer group program dedicated to personal and group support, growth and leadership.

More than thirty friends, CONNECT staff, families and teens gathered together at Bethel Alliance Church to acknowledge completion of the first CONNECT group in the SAD #44 district. Evening activities included recognition of individual accomplishments, a slide show of the winter Outward Bound trip, and graduation itself.

CONNECT is a substance abuse prevention program of Community Concepts, Inc., designed to support teens and their families in a variety of ways. Teens age 12 to 19 participate in weekly meetings, a seven day Outward Bound experience and a community service project that serves as an avenue for leadership. In addition to being part of final day activities at the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School base in Newry, some parents were matched with "Natural Helpers," community parents who offer support through a set of listening ears. Numerous parents also partaining offered by CONNECT staff.

CONNECT began in the Bethel area as a direct result of the dedication of CONNECT staff and Telstar faculty. Rodney Abbott, SAD #44 chemical health coordinator was instrumental in laying 16 months of foundational work before the group began in January 1992. Over 40 Youth initially expressed interest in the program. Interviews were conducted and 12 teens were chosen to participate in the first CONNECT group.

Between January and June, teens met weekly at the Bethel Alliance Church. After spending the first weeks getting to know each other and learning about trust, the teens and their youth leader participated in a six-day winter Outward Bound trip with staff from the HIOBS Newry base. A major highlight of the trip was an expedition on snowshoes up Stowe mountain. The group returned to Outward Bound in June to participate in the high ropes course.

Upon the return from the outdoor adventure, weekly meetings resumed and focused on personal and group issues. Meetings were also structured to provide information and support around the issue of substance use/abuse.

As their community service project, CONNECT graduates spent a day clearing brush from house lots and inventorying tools for Community Concepts' Self-Help Housing program.

Plans are currently underway to begin the next CONNECT group in September. Applications are currently being accepted. Volunteers are also needed as "Natural Helpers" for CONNECT. For further information about becoming part of the next CONNECT group, or to find out about volunteering, please call Deb DeMuth or Diana Gallant at Community Concepts 743-7716.

For further information about becoming part of the next CONNECT group, or to find out about volunteering, please call Deb DeMuth or Diana Gallant at Community Concepts 743-7716.

New addresses

position where we can quickly and accurately find people."

In 1988 Maine voters approve a $3.2 million bond issue for an enhanced 911 system. The original date for implementing the new system was 1992, but state budget problems and the complexity of the changeover have combined to push the target date back.

It now looks like it will be at least 1995 before the statewide system comes on line, according to Lt. Col. Skolfield.

But while the state creeps ahead at its usual glacial pace, some local officials are already doing the considerable legwork needed for the changeover—which will require establishing definite names for all local roads and then measuring the roads so that a uniform numbering system can be assigned.

Outside of Bethel, area towns are in various states of readiness for the changeover.

In Woodstock, former selectman Gary Wing has already completed much of the work on the new addresses, and Town Manager Vern Maxfield said a proposal will probably go to voters at an upcoming Town Meeting (but not next week's special Town Meeting).

West Paris has completed almost all its work, according to selectman Jim Marshall.

In Andover, Fire Chief Ken Dixon is at work on the new system.

Newry has named but not numbered its streets.

But Greenwood is "taking a wait and see attitude," as well as trying to get some assistance from the postal service, according to selectman Marie Bartlett.

Upton and Gilead are also waiting. Back in Bethel, selectmen Henry Dombkowski and Norm Putnam have taken charge of the project, and have been busy researching road names, measuring off distances, and shuffling through the complex, sometimes contradictory, bureaucratic directions for such a project.

Part of their work is based upon a similar attempt undertaken with the assistance of the Bethel Historical Society in the mid 1980s. Society Director Stan Howe, who was also a Bethel selectman at the time, said the earlier effort was ultimately abandoned, in part because townspeople couldn't agree on names for three or four of the roads.

What's in a name?

Over time, country roads tend to acquire more than one name, and the town, the state, utility companies, and even neighbors may each refer to a given stretch of road by different names.

And adjacent town's may have different names for roads they share. For example, is the road between East Bethel and Locke Mills the "East Bethel Road" (as it is known to Locke Mills residents) or the "Locke Mills Road" (as it is referred to in East Bethel)?

Bethel Town Manager Madeleine Henley said the problem is further compounded in hilly country like western Maine by roads, like Swan Hill Road, that once crossed over the tops of mountains but have long since been discontinued in the middle.

The lower ends of the road are still in use, she said, often with the same name—which can lead to time-consuming confusion when fire, ambulance or police are trying to reach a residence in an emergency.

Similar problems arise, she said, with names that sound alike or with closely related names—for example, Ferry Road, Ferry Road Extension, and North Ferry Road.

And miles to measure

Dombkowski said he has measured and proposed names for the 100 or so roads in Bethel, from the 11 miles of Intervale Road to the 40-foot-long Four Corners Road leading into Mason Township.

And, by way of an example of what is to come, he has proposed a numbering system for Main Street and more than a mile of Vernon Street. (The system is available for inspection in the town office.)

He said that if the full Board of Selectmen approves the completed system, he hopes to include the new addresses with September's tax bill mailing.

But before a new address system goes into effect, either in Bethel or any other community, it must go before voters at a Town Meeting and be adopted as a town ordinance.

And that means the neighbors must all agree on what their street is called.

Support research.

Unemployment

Labor Market Area, which includes 18 western Maine towns, showed "slight" improvement in the lodging and trucking industries. The largest improvement was noted in the construction industry, Dennison said.

The state's jobless rate for May registered at 5.8, down from 7.5 percent in April. Dennison said he believes the Maine rate was at least seven percent in May.

In other employment news, Dennison said job losses from the closure of Wilner's Wood Products in Norway last month will not be reflected until the June unemployment figures are compiled.

"The only real problem has been Wilner's. Other businesses have held their own," he said.

Meanwhile, officials for the Census Bureau and federal Department of Labor in Boston say they believe unemployment information provided to the state of Maine is correct.

But they also admitted the May data could be incorrect.

The Maine unemployment rate for May was pegged at 5.8 percent by state labor officials, who rely on Census information and other data to determine the monthly jobless rate.

Federal officials confirmed they had been contacted by Maine labor analysts who wanted the Census information double checked. No one, however, can explain the drop in the unemployment rate from 7.5 percent in April.

"That May figure might be an aberration. It's hard to know what the truth is unless you go out and count everyone," said Susan Chank, senior economist for the Census Bureau.

Chank said the Census Bureau surveys 900 households in Maine each month and provides the information to the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics. From there, the figures are sent on to state labor officials who use a complicated formula for determining state and regional jobless rates.

"There's a fair amount of variance month to month on a sample that small," Chank said. "... If we had 20,000 households (surveyed) we'd have more confidence" in the figures.

However, on a national basis, the figures are "quite precise" because 60,000 households are surveyed monthly, she said.

Chank reviewed Maine statistics for March, April and May and said, "The May number does appear to me to be extreme."

Denis McSweeney, assistant regional commissioner for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Boston, echoed Chank's remarks about the May figures.

"I would not say we're not confident in (the surveys), but it's a sampling that can bounce all over the place," he said.

Organic farmers conference

Farmers can learn firsthand how environmentally sound farming can be profitable. The Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association's (MOFGA) third annual Farmer to Farmer Conference will focus on sustainable agriculture practices on Nov. 14 and 15 at Northern Pines Health Spa and Conference Center on Crescent Lake in Raymond.

MOFGA designed the conference to let farmers exchange information with each other, using their own experience as the basis for discussing what works on the farm and what doesn't. The conference is partially supported by a grant under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Low Input Sustainable Agriculture (LISA) program.

Farmers will be sharing experience on subjects such as raising organic poultry, extending the growing season, practicing homeopathy with livestock—beginning and advanced, raising flowers for market, marketing successfully, reducing grain dependency, and adding value to farm products.

"Building An Organic Food System: A Look Ahead," will be the subject of Russell Libby's keynote address. Libby is research director of the Maine Department of Agriculture.

For details and a registration form send a SASE to MOFGA, Farmer to Farmer Conference, P.O. Box 2176, Augusta, ME.

W'stock meeting

Originally, the town budget, including the school commitment, required $712,272 in property taxation. Under the plan being proposed by selectmen, property taxation would decrease to $705,670.

Town Manager Vern Maxfield said last week the selectmen's goal was to maintain the current tax rate of 17.8, or $17.80 per $1,000 in property value.

Selectmen will set the 1992 tax rate after the special town meeting, Maxfield said.

The manager said voters will be asked to decide the following financial questions July 21.

Whether to place $25,000 in a savings account to help reduce the 1993 tax commitment. Maxfield said he and selectmen expect to pay more for education next year and hope to mitigate any increase in taxes.

Maxfield said that because property sales in Woodstock in the past two years have decreased, the town hasn't seen a significant impact in the state valuation, which determines how much a town receives in state school funding.

He anticipates that will change next year. "Our portion (of the SAD 44 budget) will be bigger than the last two years," Maxfield said.

Whether to appropriate $6,000 for Hepatitis B immunizations for 16 town highway and fire department employees, as mandated by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Whether to approve $2,000 for the professional mapping and cataloging of the Lakeside and South Woodstock cemeteries.

Whether to build a salt/sand storage facility at an estimated cost of $100,000.

Maxfield said the town will use its $50,000 grant from the jobs bond referendum, along with $15,000 already approved for the project.

Voters will be asked to allow selectmen to withdraw the remaining $35,000 from the tree growth penalty account.

Maxfield said the account now contains about $55,000. The money was paid to the town by property owners when they withdrew their land from tree growth.

The penalty is determined by the value of the land and the length of time the property was taxed under the state's tree growth laws.

Maxfield said the town historically has used the penalty funds for capital improvements, rather than for the town's operational budget.

Whether to approve construction of a new town grandstand, at an estimated cost of $15,000. Maxfield said the new grandstand would be an "identical replica" of the current grandstand. (See related story.)

Whether to allow selectmen to sell, by competitive bid, the former fire station on Railroad Street and reserve the proceeds in the fire truck equipment account for future department needs.

Whether to appropriate $500 to place the names of Persian Gulf War veterans on the town's veterans honor roll.

The special Town Meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on July 21 at the town office.

In other business last week, Maxfield and selectmen decided to apply for federal grant funds next year to build an extension on the town's public library.

The town had applied for $35,000 for the project in the recent jobs bond grant competition, but did not receive state approval. Two other projects, the salt/sand facility and the grandstand, were approved for grant funding.

Selectmen agreed to post signs at the town beach on Christopher Lake prohibiting bathing, animals and boat launching. Maxfield said only swimming will be allowed on the beach area.

The board also agreed to readvertise a 1982 snow plow for sale this fall. Maxfield said a recent advertisement failed to attract even one bidder.

a desperate edge. What follows is one of the widest (and wildest) collections of attitude and style I've ever heard.

Starting with The Peace Seeking Fools' college brashness in "Vision" and "Different Girl" and Active Culture's ska-reggae blend in saucy "Lawnchair Lover," GBA throws the listener sound after sound. "Love is Falling" by Sky Frontier plummets with psychedelic guitar, free-falling into vocals reminiscent of Jefferson Airplane, drums kicking the song back out of dreamland. Sonny Probe delivers a stinging essay on "Rumford Girls," half-rap, half-rant, all a bit rough for radio.

Hit 'n' Run, a straight shot of rockability, boogie and blues, fires the disc up with "Lucy Mae" and "Stand Back Baby." Javaro pops the rivets in your feet with "One-World Feeling" and "Best of Friends."

The lyric talent here in Maine is evident with songs like "Winter" and "Entrails" by Joshua Russell, vocally freed in that sing-song, half-nasal, half-lung Stipe style. Arn Smith and a group of mysteriously named Smith brothers "Rock This Town" with anthemic leads and tempo changes vaguely reminiscent of The Peace Seeking Fools. Hmm.

I could name all the bands (11). I could review each song (all 18). But I'd be reduced to one-liners (it could happen).

I think it's best to think of this collection as a musical version of the local farmers' market. You know whom you trust, you know what you like for edibles. But have you ever sat back and looked at the whole market? There's a lot there. Go ahead, try something different. Garlic chives? Ska? Lovage? Trash-punk?

How can you tell me you don't like it if you've never tried it? OK, ma, hand me a plate of that barbecued boogie. Thanks.

The Bible study time has been changed from Saturday night to Sunday at 6 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend this non-denominational quest for biblical knowledge.

Raymond and Violette Bernier were called to Massachusetts when his mother took a turn for the worse. They stayed down for the wake and funeral. Eva was about three weeks short of being 93 years old and had been in a nursing home for several years. Roland was not well enough to make the trip.

Margaret Mitchell won the honey bear full of chocolate bits as she guessed closest to the number contained in the jar. Next Monday she will bring back honey bear full of a different product. Other contents have been buttons, M & Ms and candies. The workers have the raffle quilt on the finish line and several other crafts stacking up in preparation for the fair.

The Ladies Aid will hold a clean-up, fix-up workshop Saturday, July 25. A supper for the crew will be served, recreation and grab bags enjoyed during the fun work day. Everyone is invited to come and bring some tools. Supplies will be brought by the Ladies Aid.

Thank you letters are being sent to everyone who helped on the recent bake and yard sale. Anyone qualifying but not receiving an acknowledgement, please notify me. It is important.

Ron and Betty Jordan went to Lewiston on the occasion of the death of her step-father Monday night.

Jackie and Richard Donovan of Scarborough spent Wednesday with Margaret Mitchell on Backstreet.

Strawberries are ripe and being picked between rain showers.

Melanie Farmer of Manchester, a native of Upton, had an art exhibit recently in the office of the legislature in the capitol building in Augusta.

Tony Buker of West Bethel visited Joseph Bergeron for a few days last week.

Their children, Steven from Fla., Mitchell and wife, Dora, from N.Y. and daughter Jill Robinson and husband from Michigan and granddaughters Allison and Taylor Lee will be helping them celebrate with cookouts, water sports and skiing, a trip to the White Mountains, and they hope to be able to see some moose while on their trip and if not there, at others times. They are all looking forward to a great reunion and the town sends its best wishes for a happy anniversary.

Ralph Mills, Colchester, Vt. will come July 19 for a five day visit with his parents, John and Lorraine Mills. He was sorry not to be able to get here for Mollycoddet Day but he is president of the Sportsmen Club in St. Albans and they have a shoot in N.Y. that day and he feels he should be there. injuries.

I asked Rick Roy what he was planning to do this summer and he tells me he is mowing lawns with his new riding mower. Sounds like a good occupation and one that is needed.

Everyone, pretty nearly I've called today is out picking strawberries for the festival this weekend. I hope they are able to find all they need. The rain has hampered picking efforts this week but it has helped the gardens so what is detrimental in one way is a blessing in another. It has been terribly dry this spring.

For those in the area who know John Ludlam formerly of East Bethel who is Assistant Pastor of the Church on the Rock in St. Albans, Vt., he tells us his church is to be planting a new church in August about 18 miles away in a small town and he will be pastoring that church. He is all excited about this new venture and we wish him much success.

It seems to have been a quiet week around here. The Greeses and Ryans have returned home and the rain has dampened most of the outdoor activities. John and I were in Norway Monday where John had a blood pressure check but thankfully the ride was uneventful. Thursday evening we had our Bethel Fellowship here for Bible study as Owen and Debbie Brown were going to be gone (Debbie tells us Jake now has the chicken pox, figure since I gave his sister a mention when she had them Jake deserves one too!) Anyway we had a good study and a good time watching Kirsten enjoying the cats, what ones she could get to hold still to be petted that is. Most of them when they see a child are long gone. I don't know what they think a child is. Being a sensitive little soul she was a bit upset to think they might be afraid she'd hurt them and it is rather difficult to explain that she knows that and I know that, but the cats don't know that. But Jasper who is too lazy to bother to move, and Ziggy who is in seventh heaven when anyone pays attention to her, and Socks who is so assured of his own place in the universe nothing scares him, including cars which scares me, were more than agreeable to provide her with fur to be patted. She has three cats of her own but wherever she goes she looks for cats to be loved, and there is certainly a bountiful supply out there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans have had a nice hot top driveway put in at their home here in East Stoneham.

Dr. and Mrs. Abdul Traish and family from Belmont, Mass. were here at their cottage at Lake Keewaydin this past weekend. While here they went to Denmark strawberrying. The strawberries have been real good this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nelson, Jr. have a new little black lab puppy. He has been to visit us a couple of times. They also have a new Ford truck.

The Fox Bros. are building a new garage for Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Morrow from Auburn were at their camp over on the Hut Road in West Stoneham this past week.

I forgot to put in the No. Waterford Church supper dates. The next one is July 21 from 5-6:30 p.m. These run on Tuesday nights and the Stoneham and Albany ones are on Thursday nights.

Kathy Adams is on vacation from her work in Fryeburg for two weeks. Debbie Jones is on vacation from her work in Fryeburg for a week.

The annual chicken barbeque will be held at the Kezar Lake Grange on Rte. 5 in No. Lovell Saturday, Aug. 1 from 4-7 p.m. This is a fund raiser for the Stoneham Rescue, and from experience I can tell you it is good.

Members of the Stoneham Planning Board met at the Town office on Wednesday night and members voiced concern about the wording of the Mobile Home Ordinance. It was suggested that the board review the surrounding areas mobile home ordinances to see how they have it worded. Town Clerk, Mary Fox will draft a proposal for the next board meeting to be voted upon at the special town meeting Aug. 10.

James Osadnick was issued a permit to erect an 8 by 12 ft. storage building on his property.

North Waterford World's Fair will be going on July 16-19. Senior Citizen's lunch will be at the Dance Hall at 12:30 p.m. on Thursday. There will be all kinds of fun things to see and do during these four days. Suzie and Bill Mosca are preparing their Center Lovell Inn for a benefit luncheon July 19 for Fryeburg and Stoneham Rescue Services. The Moscas are donating their skills, food and facilities for an Italian dinner with members of Fryeburg and Stoneham Rescue assisting as waiters and waitresses. Lunch will be from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tickets are available by advance sale only until July 18. They may be obtained from any rescue member or at the local stores.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Linda Woods of Fairfield is spending her school vacation here in North Newry at her summer place. She teaches high school where she lives. Enjoy the scenery and your friends, Linda.

Theresa Toti of Harrisville, R.I. spent some time here with me. She was a guest of the "Newry Bowling Gang" and tried to beat them all! Those who went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford were: Karlene Bachelder, Louise Tetley, Gil Seeley and Olive Anderson. Rena Powers was a guest. Of the "lefties" Karlene was high on the singles with one string of 100 and she was also high on the triples. Of the "righties" guest Theresa did beat them. She was high on the singles and triples. So we sent her home back to R.I. Karlene had three spares and one strike. Gil had one spare. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

The Newry Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary held their meeting Thursday night the 9th at the town building with nine members. The tickets for the $100 food certificate from the Locke Mills Sure Fine store are now available by the members and also at the Red Top Restaurant and the Maine Line Gift Shop in Bethel at $1 each or six for $5. All members who have tickets to sell are reminded that all tickets not sold should be returned to president Brenda Wight by August 1, as the drawing will be Aug. 13. A discussion on having hats made with a little fire engine emblem on them to be sold. The club will contact Groan & McGum on the printing. More on this later. Also a possible "get together" potluck supper with the firemen and their families at the Grange Hall in the near future. More on that later. Next meeting will be Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. at the town building. New members are welcome.

A visit to the Rumford Community Health Center by Louise Tetley and Gil Seeley found Amy and Roger Hanscom relaxing on the patio (between sunshine and rain) Thursday afternoon.

Louise and Norman Tetley celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary last week. Happy anniversary, friends, from all of us here in Newry. Their daughter Sandy and friend will be visiting them this weekend.

MAJOR LEAGUE HEAT--Former major leaguer and Mexico High School star Stan Thomas winds up to deliver a pitch at batting practice this weekend for the Northern Oxford County American Legion team. His friend Neil Olson of Bethel covers first. Olson and Les Otten of Newry arranged for the big leaguer to throw practice. Thomas last pitched for New York Yankees in the late 70s.

At the quarterly business meeting the church voted for the Awana Club which will start this fall. The goal of Awana Headquarters is to assist the local church in its ministry of bringing boys and girls to Christ and then training them for Christian service.

AWANA is in need of "listeners & helpers" that do not require passing the AWANA training exam. Anyone interested in our program would benefit from this meeting on Tuesday too.

A Quarterly Business Meeting will be July 15th at 7:30 p.m.

North Paris

Saturday, July 4, I went to the flea market and food sale at the Pinhook Chapel put on by the North Woodstock Community Club. What a lot of pies and a good variety. I got two pies and they were delicious. They sold 45 quarts of strawberries and they had steamed hot dogs and coffee and muffins.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham from Dixfield and I enjoyed a delicious dinner with Richard and Barbara Felt and Sharon Silver on July 4.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Abbott and family in the loss of her mother, Myrtle Allen Sumner.

Tuesday, July 7, ten West Paris Senior Citizens went on the Songo Queen boat ride and then four of us met with them at Shorelands Restaurant for a delicious dinner. The group has tried to decide where to go in August but no definite plans were made. Anyone coming up with some places to go, call Avis Ellingwood at 674-2631.

Tuesday, July 7 Lois Ellingwood had surgery at Stephens Memorial Hospital. She may come home this Friday or Saturday. Take it easy, Lois.

Wednesday Jason Thayer and I visited Richard and Barbara Felt. Also Mary Smith, Jason and I enjoyed the concert put on by the "Old Parisians." There was a great crowd, had a little shower, but they went right back to playing.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oja have had their two grandchildren for a weeks visit. Beth and Bill were coming to get them over the weekend.

Callers here have been Joseph Kalinowski, Richard Felt, Jason Thayer, Joe and Madge Vatcher, Bob Ilsley, and Sharon Silver who mowed my lawn.

BEAR LOVE--Amanda and Michelle Waterhouse of Bethel pose with their new friend "Buffy Bear." The girls are the latest patients of Dr. John Mason's to win a prize in his "Adopt A Furry Friend" program.

The Woodstock Senior Citizens met at the Country Way for dinner and meeting on Thursday, July 2 with 54 present. Two ladies from Crescent Park School showed a video on the needed larger School at Crescent Park.

Franklin Grange #124 will meet on July 20th with Ladies night headed by Charlotte Cole.

The Historical Museum has an exceptional collection of antiques and collectibles for our area, the museum library is more than adequate for the Society's needs. Remember to visit what is now a major local attraction this summer. Also remember Larry Billings, curator, is himself an antique dealer as well as having a good academic background, so he is qualified in a special way to administer the Society's collections. Larry Billings has recently given quite a bit of glass and china to the museum, also a painting of some birch trees, a cookie jar, paperweight and tin. The museum is an interesting place to be this summer. Everything old is new again there.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt were their daughter and family JoAnn, David, Ray and Shawn Crockett and Beatrice Farnum.

The Senior Citizens will hold an auction at the Bryant Pond Grange Hall parking lot on Thursday, July 16, 6 to 8 p.m. Items may be left at the Jr. Hall on Wednesday from 4 to 7 p.m.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, July 6 for CWA night. Officers were filled by present or past C.W.A. members. Master, Evelyn Bean; overseer, Myrtle Bisbee; Steward, Lorretta Hall; A.S., Charlotte Cole; L.A.S., Peggy Blake; Chaplain, Bertha Benoit; Lect., Alice Hoyt; Gatekeeper, Roberta Ramey; Ceres, Ruby Whitney; Pomona, Alma Abbott; Flora, Catherine Lowe; Treasurer, Lettie Brooks; Sec., Wilma Day; Executive Committee, Sandra Martin, Betty Kerr; C.W.A., Edith Hathaway, Verna Swan and Dot Canwell; Pianist, Althea Fish. Program included a song by Bertha Benoit; Pledge of Allegiance to the flag; Poem for 4th of July "The Same Voice Sounds" Olive Risko; Songs Harry Boyer; Eighth Ceremony for Anniversary of Grange by Sec. Esther and Olive Davis were in Denmark today Wednesday where they got strawberries for the coming winter. There was a large crowd there, around 150 cars coming and going. We went with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews from No. Bridgton.

Francis and Glennis Brooks gave an old suitcase to the Historical Museum at the end of June. Annie Crockett and Kay McAllister watched the museum the other day.

Mostly Society members came into the museum in June but it made the attendance about as usual.

Many celebrated the 4th with camping trips, picnic and parties around here in various places. Definite news is scarce at present.

Fourth of July visitors here were Bernie, Kassi, and Kaity Gatchell of Auburn, Brandon and Tara Salway of Old Orchard Beach. Our cook-out was a cook-in!

We're getting the rains and showers we didn't have earlier in the season. To report this fourth of July was coldest ever on record.

One evening early in the week Mrs. Millie Wentzell with Mary and Bob Eichel went to Twitchell Pond to see the mother loon and her babies. On the way into town near the golf course a big black bear crossed the road in front of them.

Bill Allen and wife Beth and son William from California have been at the Paulin cottage this week. Little William celebrated his first birthday this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins of Eustis, Fla. have been visiting his daughter and husband, the Bernie Michauds this week.

Bill and Phyllis Bancroft with Bruce and Alta Smith of Lynchville spent a few days this week with Christine and Joe Hatstat in Brownsville, Vt.

Their daughter Vicky came while they were there. They also were in Hanover, N.H. to see the new Dartmouth Hitchcock Medical Center.

Norma and I were in Norway and South Paris Thursday on business. Also visited with Diane Lescault and Joan Coolidge at Market Square Health Care Center.

If you watch a game it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf.

SAVINGS BANK WINS FIVE-STAR RATING

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., a Coral Gables, Florida research firm has announced that The Bethel Savings Bank, FSB has been awarded a five-star rating. According to Bauer, the award identifies the bank as one of the safest, most creditworthy savings associations in the United States.

The award is based on a zero to five-star rating assigned by BFR based on its analysis of the Dec. 31, 1991 financial data as filed with federal regulators.

A five-star rating indicates that the institution's tangible capital exceeds 6 percent of tangible assets, its core capital ratio exceed 6 percent, its risk-based capital ratio exceeds 8 percent, that there are no excessive delinquencies or repossessed assets and that the institution was profitable or suffered an insignificant loss for the quarter ended March 31, 1990. Paul A. Bauer, president of the research firm said, "Our five-star rating is awarded to traditional savings associations, institutions that serve the local community and watch their bottom line. Out of 2206 savings associations reporting for the period ended December 31, 1991, only 873, received our five-star rating."

Bethel Savings Bank, FSB is a member of FDIC and has branches in Bethel, Harrison, South Paris and private banking offices in Portland and Rumford.

Task Force notes:

On July 10, an experiential Sunrise Seminar, "Community Futuring: A focus Group Experience," was presented by members of the Bethel Area Task Force Gwyneth Bohr, Nancy Davis, Ginger Kelly, John Shorb, and Patricia Williams.

Participants divided into the following focus groups: First-time visitors to Bethel, return visitors, people from non-profits, people from corporations and businesses, people of color, and Bethel residents.

Groups discussed questions similar to those posed to area citizens last fall: 1) What makes Bethel a good site for your focus group? 2) What would make being here an even better experience? 3) As a group, what in your wildest dreams would you like to see happen in this area? Ideas were reported back to the total group, concluding with suggestions for "where we (the community) go from here."

Sunday night, July 12 Task Force members held a supper meeting at the Holiday House with Dr. Lennox Joseph, executive director of NTL. Discussion began with updates on NTL's five-year plan for Bethel and on Task Force projects and moved on to the exploration of new possibilities for NTL and NTL/Bethel ventures.

The next regular meeting of the Task Force will be Sunday, Aug. 2 at 7 p.m. at the Bingham House.

Rotary Club notes

The July 7 meeting of the Bethel Rotary Club was the monthly club assembly, dedicated to discussing club business.

President Jeff Parsons presided over the meeting and made several announcements.

The board of directors voted donations to the Bethel Library of $500 for their general fund and $100 for their summer reading program. They also voted a $200 contribution to the Maine Conservation School.

Jeff announced that year end attendance for the 1991-92 year was 93.5 percent. This shows a real dedication of club members to the Rotary mission.

David Murphy advised the club about the upcoming auction, Friday evening, July 17, at Telstar High School. A lot of work needs to be done to ensure its success. Many great donations have been received, especially gift certificates.

Nancy Harrison reminded club members that we would be serving kielbasi sandwiches and nachos on Mollycoddett Day as well as soda and Poland Spring Water. Many thanks to Rick Flint of Sunday River for all his work on this.

Rick Whitney had Rotary information and reflected on the recycling presentation made a couple weeks ago. He reminded the club that this year's Rotary Motto is "Real Happiness is Helping Others."

Guests this week were Carl Hansen of Bethel; Shirley Powell of Rumford; Stan Bumpus of Oxford Hills; Bill Lowther, Gil Robinson and Jim Wiswell, summer regulars.

Mahoosuc Arts notes:

Mollykett Day is approaching, which means the arrival of Professor Paddy Whack's Marching One Man Band. The Mahoosuc Arts Council of Bethel is proud to present Rick Adam, eclectic performer extraordinaire. According to Rick, he has been developing Professor Paddy Whack's Band for over 15 years.

"Animated and funny, the Professor plays a mechanical collection of over 50 pounds of musical gizmos, noise makers and special effects. Rick has been called a 'Raider of the Lost Arts.' Besides a one man band, he is an accomplished musical saw player, stilt dancer and master of hand shadows. As a founding member, and artistic director of the Heart of Gold Vaudeville Company, he has been featured in Yankee Magazine as one of the pioneers of the New Vaudeville resurgence. As a musician, mime and clown, Rick has appeared with the Trinity Square Repertory Company, Celebration Mime Theater, New England Vaudeville Review, and at fairs and festivals throughout the United States. As an actor, composer and choreographer, he has worked in radio, television and films, and is looked up to as the only one-man band on stilts in America. Rick lives in the mountains of western Maine with his wife and partner, storyteller, Robin Mello. When not performing, he most enjoys writing songs and tinkering with his musical inventions."

For Mollykett Day, Rick will march in the parade, stroll through the crowd in the afternoon, and present a special half-hour show in front of the flat bed truck on the Bethel Common. Show time is 1 p.m., with the show's length being a half hour. If rain should come at that time, the show will move to Bingham Auditorium (Church St.) at Gould Academy. Additionally, if Mollykett Day is cancelled, Rick's show will still be featured at Bingham, also at 1 p.m., where he will present a special

From the Bethel Area Chmb. of Commerce

Many thanks to Harry and Lal Faulkner of the Backstage Restaurant and Lounge for hosting the Business After Hours this past Monday evening. It was a great get together.

This third annual Chamber Challenge Golf Tournament was a overwhelming success thanks to the efforts of chairman Jack Cronin, the contributions of time and talents of the Sunday River Graphics staff, Jeff Sterling and crew, the facilities at the Bethel Inn and Country Club as well as the talented golf professional, Allen Connors, and all the wonderful sponsors and donors.

The Welcome to Bethel Sign Committee will be making a presentation on Wednesday morning at the Key Bank. Chairpeople, Karen Hakala and Tom McGinniss, as well as sign makers, Deb and John Glazier, will be presenting different options and price tags of the possible signs we might choose to erect. If you were not able to make the meeting and are interested in this project, call Tom, Karen or the Chamber office.

Many thanks in advance to Jim Largess and Dillon Gillies for chairing the two projects we have going on Mollykett Day, the road race and the lobster-roll booth. Also, thanks to all the volunteers who always are so instrumental in making our projects happen. This is a great community.

Make Sure Your Salary is "Reasonable"

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

If you work for someone else, the IRS doesn't mind how much you make—even if the media might call your salary "excessive." But if you work for your own corporation, the IRS insists that your salary be "reasonable."

Why the difference? When you work for someone else, the market dictates your salary. But when you are both owner and employee, the IRS wants your salary to reflect the "reasonable" value of your services.

To understand what's at stake, assume your corporation has $50,000 of profit this year. If $50,000 is "reasonable" compensation for your services, your corporation can pay you (and deduct) $50,000 of salary, which eliminates its profit. The corporation would pay no income tax, and you would pay personal tax on $50,000 salary.

But now assume that the reasonable value of your services this year was only $40,000. In that case, only $40,000 would be deductible as a "reasonable" salary. The $10,000 difference between total profit for the year and your "reasonable" salary would be nondeductible, and subject to corporate-level tax. If you wanted to get this $10,000 into your own hands, the company would have to pay you a taxable dividend. In effect, corporate profits that are not allowed as "reasonable" salary are subject to double taxation (corporate income tax on profit and personal income tax on tax you when paid as a dividend).

To avoid potential double-taxation, document in your corporate records that your entire salary is "reasonable." For example, show that your salary is a "reasonable" payment for someone with your skills and experience and that you spend a substantial amount of time at your job. If possible, also document that company profits depend directly on your personal services, rather than being attributable to income streams like rents or royalties.

SENIOR WATCH

HEALTH COSTS: WHO GETS RICH WHEN YOU GET SOAKED?

By Ron Pollack

Jeffrey R. is eight years old. He plays soccer. He's a Cub Scout. Sometimes he fights with his brothers. He looks and sounds like a bright, healthy, happy kid.

That's how he seems during the day. At night, things are very different. Jeffrey has a birth defect in his brain stem, which causes him to stop breathing when he falls asleep. All night, every night, he must be hooked up to machines that monitor his blood-oxygen levels and keep him breathing. Setting off alarms when his breathing stops. All night, every night, a nurse monitors the high-tech machinery that crowds his bedroom.

Like any family hit by serious illness, Jeffrey's problem has been tough on the whole family. But his illness is not just physically and emotionally painful for the family. It is also a financial catastrophe. The current system of private health insurance has proved itself to be inadequate to the needs of middle-income families like Jeffrey's. "We thought we had excellent health insurance. But Jeffrey spent most of his first nineteen months in the hospital," his mother relates. "By the time Jeffrey was 11 months old his $100,000 lifetime policy limit was used up. We owe $600,000."

The family will never be out of debt. The really shocking part of this story is that it's not an unusual case. Medical bankruptcy is a nightmare facing more Americans every day.

Skyrocketing Health Prices

We now spend over $7,000 per family every year on health care. That's nearly three times as much as in 1980, just twelve years ago. And things are getting worse. According to numbers released by the White House, we'll be spending $14,000 per family by the end of this decade!

Here's the basic problem: EVERY DOLLAR SQUEEZED OUT OF YOUR FAMILY BUDGET BY HEALTH COSTS WINDS UP IN SOMEBODY'S POCKET. We'll never solve our health care crisis until we crack down on the health profiteers: the insurance companies, big drug companies, hospital chains, high-priced medical specialists and medical labs!

Look at where our money is going: American drug companies charge American consumers up to seven times as much for the exact same drugs they sell in foreign countries at much lower prices. Then they spend more on lobbying and advertising than on medical research!

Commercial health insurance companies that sell insurance to small businesses spend a dollar on administrative red tape for every two dollars that actually go for benefits. The insurance companies waste about $70 billion of our money every year on advertising, lobbyists, paperwork and profits. And there are the high priced medical specialists. Anesthesiologists' first year salaries average $136,000, and the average doctor makes about $170,000 a year after expenses.

Health care in the U.S. costs 40% more per person than in Canada, even though Canadians live two years longer than we do. We all deserve the peace of mind that comes with knowing we'll be able to afford the high quality health care our family might need. But none of us will have that peace of mind until we put a lid on the outrageous overcharges of the health and insurance profiteers.

What's at stake is your family's health. Ron Pollack is executive director of Families USA Foundation

New Medicine Provides Shorter Treatment

A recently approved antibiotic medicine has several advantages when given to individuals for certain mild to moderate infections. The new antibiotic is azithromycin. Dr. Thomas Andriole, a physician at Yale University School of Medicine, comments in a recent issue of the medical journal, Geriatrics, about this new infection-fighter. According to Dr. Andriole, azithromycin offers three desirable features to the patient: the antibiotic is well tolerated by most individuals; it has been shown to be effective in patients with mild to moderate infections that do not require hospitalization; and the dosing schedule is very convenient.

According to information provided by physicians and pharmacists by Pfizer, the manufacturer of azithromycin (Zithromax), the acceptable length of treatment for this new antibiotic is five days. Dr. Andriole indicates that results after five days of therapy with this medicine compare favorably with 10 to 14 days of therapy with many other oral antibiotics.

Pfizer, in their product literature, recommends azithromycin for mild upper respiratory tract infections such as chronic bronchitis, urethritis, and uncomplicated skin infections. Azithromycin should not be used for severe infections or infections which require admission of the patient to a hospital.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

It has been said that this world is not a playground but a battlefield. The Bible teaches that there is an unseen spiritual battle being waged for the souls of men and women. In the heavenlies, the forces of God are in conflict with the forces of Satan who fell from his exalted position as anointed angel of God because of pride (see Isaiah 14 and Ezekiel 28).

This pernicious angel called Satan was not satisfied with falling from heaven by himself so he convinced one-third of the angels to follow him. Even this was not enough, Satan peddled his sinful ways to God's first human creations, Adam and Eve. We as the descendants of our first parents are the recipients of this sin nature. Sin must be judged and that is why the Gospel of John says sinful humanity is under the wrath of God (John 3:36).

But God, in His Sovereign plan has provided the All-Sufficient remedy for the sinfulness of man. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). Jesus Christ is the fulfillment of that great prophecy first found in Genesis 3:15. This is part of the judgment which God proclaimed on Satan who embodied the serpent in the garden: "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

Jesus was the seed of the woman for He was born of the Virgin. Satan bruised the heel of Jesus when our Lord was crucified for our sins. But the best news of all is that the head of Satan was bruised at the Cross of Calvary. By His death on the cross, Jesus paid the penalty for sin and delivered the fatal blow to Satan and his evil kingdom. Salvation for the sinner is now possible. Victory over the Satanic army is certain.

The end of the great battle of the ages is well recorded in the book of Revelation. Satan and all of his wicked angels are doomed to spend eternity in the lake of fire. Scripture is also clear in recording the future of every human being who has not received the free and full forgiveness found in Jesus Christ, the promised Savior of the world. "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:15).

For now the battle continues. The Christian is on the winning side yet he or she is called to be strong in the Lord and to "put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places" (Ephesians 6:11). One day we will be able to lay down the weapons of this warfare but for now we must remember that we are living on a battlefield. Therefore we must be alert to these spiritual realities by watching and praying always in the Spirit.

Do you belong to the family and army of God? Have you received the new birth by believing upon Jesus Christ and His sacrificial death? If you have, there is a glorious eternal future stored up for you. Let the Blessed Hope of your Captain's Return give you strength for the battle you face today!

If you have not placed your trust in the Lord Jesus Christ, realize that "the god of this world (Satan) has blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them" (II Corinthians 4:4). May this be the day that you ask the Lord Jesus Christ to be your Savior. The battle for your soul is being waged. Turn your back on Satan, repent of your sin, run to Christ for refuge and become part of the triumphant army of God!

Pleasant Valley Bible Church
